Collaborative projects

This is how providers in the region have worked together to address skills needs include the following examples:

Institute of Technology (YHIoT)

Yorkshire & Humber Institute of Technology specialises in providing higher-level technical education and training. The Institute is based on a collaborative partnership between a number of colleges, universities and employers in the region. Partners are working together to deliver and develop higher-level curriculum in digital, engineering and manufacturing, construction and agri-tech subjects.

Local Skills Improvement Fund (LSIF)

Led by York College, the LSIF has been a key opportunity for collaborative activity between providers. Based on Local Skills Improvement Plan (LSIP) recommendations, the area has focused on these key priority areas to address through LSIF funding:

> Digital

> Health and Social Care

YNYER Principals Group

This group brings together eight colleges in the region to enhance and coordinate its approach to skills in North Yorkshire and the Humber.

Future Collaboration

We expect future collaborative work to include:

> Deliver skills solutions to the LSIP priorities of Business, People and key sectors.

> Through the LSIF, deliver innovative curriculum using new technology to transform the curriculum in digital and health and social care.

> Develop a joint curriculum strategy aligned to the economic growth strategy for the Combined Mayoral Authority for York and North Yorkshire to reduce skills black spots in York, North Yorkshire and East Riding.
